

BestTransport Selected as a Top 100 Logistics IT Company for 2007 by Inbound Logistics

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

COLUMBUS, OHIO April 19, 2007 — BestTransport, the leading provider of networked solutions for matching the transportation needs of shippers and carriers, has been selected by Inbound Logistics Magazine to be featured in their annual Top 100 IT Providers list for 2007. The list, which includes well-known companies setting industry standards such as Oracle, SAP and Epicor Software will be published in the April edition of the magazine and posted on the publication's website.

Inbound Logistics has been providing business logistics managers with information on industry trends and best practices for over 20 years. The Top 100 Logistics IT Providers list enables readers to compare and contrast solutions from various vendors, allowing them to make more informed decisions regarding their technology options. Inbound Logistics editors selected the featured providers from a pool of over 500 total applicants, using questionnaires, online research, and personal interviews.

"Inbound Logistics readers are among the most demanding business logistics practitioners anywhere," said Felecia Stratton, Editor, Inbound Logistics. "Research shows that agility, driven by logistics technology, has become required to compete, not just for Fortune 1000 companies but for smaller enterprises as well. A corollary trend and one that helped us choose BestTransport as a Top 100 Logistics IT Provider is the ease, simplicity, and efficiency of systems that are migrating to the Web. For that reason, Inbound Logistics editors are pleased to recognize BestTransport as one of this year's Top 100 Logistics IT Providers." Stratton concluded.

"We are delighted to have been selected and recognized as a leading-edge solution provider," said BestTransport's CEO, Mark Shary. "Inbound logistics is a well-regarded publication, and being featured as a Top 100 IT provider with other industry leaders is a great benchmark for us."
