MIDMARK PROMOTES MONIQUE MCGLINCH TO DIRECTOR OF LOGISTICS

VERSAILLES, Ohio – (February 22, 2008) – Midmark Corporation recently announced the promotion of Monique McGlinch to director of logistics. In her new position, McGlinch will focus the department's efforts toward total supply chain solutions for Midmark's customers and optimize its internal network in order to continue to reduce costs, improve lead times and improve quality of service and delivery. She will continue to report to Karl Weidner, VP of manufacturing.

McGlinch joined Midmark in 2005 as logistics manager, a newly created position. Since that time, she has lead transportation carrier negotiations and focused on building relationships. In 2006, she successfully lead a BestTransport implementation to automatically route Midmark's freight and tender its shipments to the transportation carriers through EDI via Oracle. The use of that tool was a major variable for reducing Midmark's outbound freight by 17% in 2007.

"I am pleased to announce Monique's promotion," said Weidner. "Monique has demonstrated a strong capability in driving improvements in our logistics operations. She has a strong customer-centric approach to her work and this promotion to a director level position mirrors the increasing importance that our logistics operations play as Midmark continues to grow in size and complexity."

She holds an M.B.A. from the Wright State University in finance and management information systems. She also holds a B.S. in management information systems and operations management from Wright State. McGlinch resides near Greenville, Ohio with her husband, Tyler, and their three children, Cade, Cole and Chloe.
